They spent pretty much their entire Friday afternoons on summer break helping others. They helped The Salvation Army with their hot meal program, which feeds roughly a hundred plus (some Fridays less!) people each week. They helped in any way they could, from simple cleaning to serving food to individuals less fortunate than themselves. It was amazing to see them give back a little of their time and energy with a smiling face and The Salvation Army personally thanks them. Great Job Ladies! Way to "connect" with the community.
